

Noordse Park - WATER CONNECTS

In the Netherlands we have access to safe, clean drinking water, straight from the tap. But in other places in the world this is a luxury. It is not adequate or a completely unaffordable social commodity for majority in this world. Most of our water is used for purposes that don't require a drinking water quality. This has a great impact on our global ecosystem.

The Noordse Park likes to become a circular playground with smart water use. We would like to raise awareness of water consumption and find playful ways to stimulate a more sustainable way of living.

The Link foundation connects the ambition of the Noordse Park with water projects in Kenya and Mexico through creative and playful activities in the playground. This international perspective enables us to share stories and gain insight into sustainability issues in a global context.
